

2014 State Legislative Summary: January 1 through July 1

The 2014 legislative session across the fifty states was another active one with 63 bills introduced and 13 enacted or vetoed pertaining to new or updated child nutrition policy. For comparison, in 2013, 70 bills were introduced and 19 signed into law. This report does not include appropriations/budget bills that contain annual financial support, unless it pertains to new or updated nutrition policy. Many of the resolutions and bills are budget neutral, but keep the focus on the importance of strengthening school meal programs.

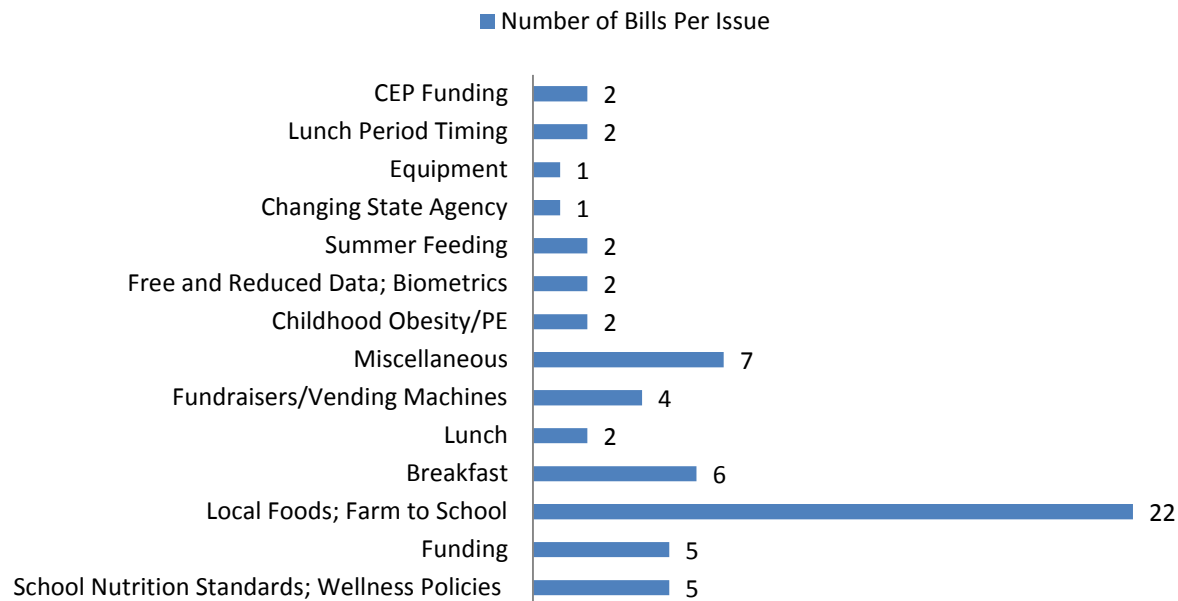

The key points for the majority of the 2014 States' Legislation Session include:

- With 22 bills introduced, Farm to School/Local produce bills were by far the most important issue in 2014.
- Minnesota and Colorado expanded or eliminated the reduced price category by providing additional appropriations.
- Two states passed breakfast legislation – New Mexico via increasing support for breakfast after the bell programs and Minnesota by providing free breakfast to all kindergartners.
- Last year saw multiple bills on Epi pens, but there were none in 2014. Instead, there were two bills that focused on adjusting state funding formulas to address utilizing the Community Eligibility Program (CEP).
- Expansion of summer feeding sites continues to be a focus for many states.

Looking ahead, SNA members can expect many of the 2014 bills reintroduced in 2015. Potential new bills could include breakfast expansion, summer feeding, local produce/Farm to School, and possibly elimination of reduced price category.
